Attorney A. H. Swarthout, has just purchased the village property of Rev.
E. E. Hall, on Peninsula Ave., consisting of a dwelling house and two lots.

Yankee Doodle is a very fine tune, and it is thought the Essexville band with a little more practice will be able to play it passably well—it is hoped so, at least, by the Otsego Lake people.

Mr. E. N. Salling, of Manistee, is in town for a few days.

We issue a supplement this week in which will be found full particulars of the dastardly attempt to assassinate President Garfield.

The oration of Rev. Wm. Putnam at Otsego Lake on the Fourth, is very highly spoken of as being a fine effort, engaging the close attention of his large audience from beginning to close.

Mr. Phillip Mosher, Sr., returned from Southern Michigan last week, bringing with him a very fine span of heavy draught horses, which he has taken north to work on the railroad extension.

From all accounts Otsego Lake was brim full and running over with people anxious to celebrate, and 'tis said were not disappointed in that respect, neither, as a splendid program was carried out, and everybody made happy.

Mr. O. Palmer, of Jonesville, Hillsdale county, has recently sold out his interest in the Independent, published at that place, and will remove with his family to this county, where he has lately purchased a farm, and will try rural life for a while.

Commissioner Lampert let several jobs of road building yesterday in the southeast part of this township. Mr. Geo. O. Hall secured 21 miles to construct at an average of 11 cents per rod, while Mr. S. B. Turner bid in one mile at 6 cents per rod.

It is said that the main stream of the Ausable river is soon to be cleaned out from above Grayling, clear to the South Branch, a distance of about 30 miles, by parties owning valuable pine along that stream, so as to facilitate the running of logs.

The large store of Salling, Hanson & Co., of this village, has been put in better condition in case of fire, by the building of a platform leghwise on the roof, and placing thereon several large casks of water.

Bears are more numerous in this county at the present time than for several years past. Quite a number have been recently seen in the immediate vicinity of this village, and reports come in from all over the county of some being seen every day. A few days ago five were seen near Crofton, and of the number three were killed.

Last Tuesday morning, while Miss Christina Riekers, of Clearwater township, was on her way to the school house where she teaches, she encountered a large bear which gave unmistakable signs of its vicious nature. It chased her for a long distance, but by the aid of a parasol the managed to frighten the animal so that he did not attack her, and thus reached a neighbor's house in safety. The citizens of that township have declared war on the "varmints," and a large number will probably be killed. —[Kalkaskaian.]

We received a pleasant call on Tuesday from Dr. Morrison, who has been successfully treating the majority of cases of diphtheria in and around Frederickville. The Dr. tells us he has decided on permanent location at that place, and has commenced the erection of an office building, which he will occupy as soon as finished.

FARM FOR SALE.—I have a farm of 20 acres in northwest corner of Grayling township, one and three-fourth miles particulars, call at my office at Gay-ling. A. H. SWARTHOUT, Attorney.

The furniture for the new Harder House has arrived, and is now being set up for the future comfort of guests.
This house when entirely completed, will furnish accommodations for about 40 boarders.—It is well ordered, new, neat and clean, and will be a desirable place for the transient and traveling public to stop.

EXECUTION SALE.—The sale of 5 sleighs, 2 sets of wheels and one

December and May: One of the seeming absurdities of the season was the solemnization of the marriage of Mr. Edward Nichols, of this village, years, on July 4th. As the juvenile bride was spanked and sent to bed,

GONE AWAY.

I will not think of thee as cold and dead;
Low-lying in the grave that I have set.
I would not stir the earth to bring thy friend
And left the body only, there for thee.
Ever let me with the pale arms crossed
On that unloving heart that was my own;
They only told me all that I had lost.
When from thy breast thy fond soul had flown.
Thou wert not that, and so I turned away;
And left the house when other mourners said:
Kor did I come on that unhappy day.
When to the tomb that dreadful thing was laid.
To me thou art not dead, but gone all hour
Into another country, fair and sweet;
Where thou shalt by some undreamed power
Be kept in youth and beauty till we meet.
Thus I can feel that any given day
I could rejoice thee, gone awhile before
To foreign climes to pass dull hours away;
By wandering on the broad Atlantic shore,
Where each long wave that breaks upon the sand
Bears thee a message from me waiting here,
And every breath springing breathes across the land.
Seems as a sign that artunger hour.
And I will think of thee as living there,
And I will keep thy grave in sweetest bloom
And then grieve a garden to my care.
Farewell departure from our mutual gloom.
Then when my day is done and I, too, die,
They will be as if I journeyed to the skies.
And when all quiet we together lie
We shall not know that we have ever died.
All the Year Round.

THE FLEXIBLE FIEND.

Last summer my wife received a telegram from her mother (visiting in Boston), urging her to meet her in that city on an important family matter. Let no one suspect me of intimating that my respected mother-in-law is the "flexible fiend," from my introducing her name so soon after the title of my story; but had it not been for that telegram my experience with said fiend would have been nil.

Arabella was to start early in the morning, and gave me many orders. "Be sure and lock all the doors every night, Theophilus, and, whatever you do, don't aggravate Bridget, for you know what a helpless predicament you would be in if she should take it into her head to leave."

I gave the required promises, and next day saw Arabella safely on her way. For a few days all went smoothly. Bridget was, to use her own description, in the most "illigent" of humors, and I enjoyed unbroken tranquillity. Then came the beginning of the end. Of course Arabella and I exchanged letters daily. (We had only been married a year and a half.) On the afternoon of the fourth day her letter contained the following thunderbolt—in a postscript:

"I forgot to tell you that I found Aunt Carraway here on a visit from the West. She will come home with me for a short stay, so be sure and have Biddy clean the house from roof to cellar, as Aunt Carraway has an eye like a lynx—but then you know, Philly dear, she has a great deal of money."

I understood that, "Philly dear," once. On ordinary occasions Arabella calls me "Theophilus." She knew that I would rather face a howitzer than convey her commands to Bridget, but, as the thing had to be done, her mode of address was an affectionate hint to approach the dreaded Daniel with the utmost circumspection.

I began at once. I went to the kitchen, where Biddy was scouring pans.

"Well, Bridget, is there anything you need from the store? I may run down there to-night, and can bring anything you want—just as well as not, you know."

"Sugar's out," said the maiden, laconically.

"Anything else, Biddy?" with a Piedmontian smile and a Chabaud inflection.

"Sure ye might be after fetchin' a cup o' tay, too!"

"I will, Biddy, with great pleasure. By the way, that's a fine fellow that comes to see you sometimes, McCarthy is his name."

"It's my cuzint, shure," said the bashful Biddy, rubbing away very hard at the bottom of a pan.

"A very nice cousin, indeed, and I hope you will treat him well, Biddy, every time he comes. By the way, I have just had another letter from Mrs. Blodgett. She will be home on Thursday, and wished me to mention to you that you might do a little house-cleaning, as she expects to bring a friend with her. I'll help you, Biddy, 'pon my word I will," I continued hastily, seeing signs of gathering wrath on Erin's brow.

Next day we began operations. While Bridget scrubbed and scoured and grumbled and glowered, I devoted my energies to clearing out the rubbish in our bedroom closet, and progressed swimmingly until I had to an old hoop-skirt of mine. I had heard a friend say that the hoop-skins and old skirts were to be used for the making of on the following day, and I could not break the Carraway would be in position either within hours of her arrival! If I should throw it behind the wood-shed, Biddy would trip over it and fractur her classic nose. A brilliant idea presented itself! I would bury it in the vegetable garden, near the potato patch.

"The turf shall be its winding sheet," sang I triumphantly, and bore it to the spot. A few spadefuls of earth, a few mean tears (caused by uprooting a very powerful onion neighbor), and all was over.

The next day I sat in my library, reading an instructive volume entitled "Enigmas of Life." The door was thrown open, and a bouncing, bewildering object gyrated along the floor to my study-chair, followed by Bridget, with the thunders of Olympus on her brow.

and—ya—hacked cyat. With wrathful gestures she shot forth her tirade: H—

"The next day Arabella (dear girl) returned with Aunt Carraway. As we sat at dinner, plying our elderly relative with all the delicacies of the season, I heard an animated discussion at the kitchen door between Bridget and a strange man. Bridget's voice grew shriller, the man's gruffer, then heavy footstep came near. I quaked with a fearful presentiment. The door opened and the rag man stood before me with indignation on his freckled face.

"If you suppose that Hiriam Salathiel Bangs is again 'tew pay 5 cents a paund for old hupskirt wire you're just a little out of your reckin' in if I had to dig through to the antipodes!

No one should say that Theophilus Blodgett was the man to be conquered by an old hoop-skirt forty-spring double-elliptic though it might be! Just as I reached the corner of the woodshed, I heard a silvery voice exclaim:

"Good-morning, Mr. Blodgett!"

Looking around, I despaired, oh, horror! the clegyman of St. James, with his wife and young-lady visitor, Miss Juliet Thornton, coming to call! For the Rev. Ciggewell and lady I cared not a straw, but Juliet Thornton had been one of my ardent attachments before I engaged myself to Arabella. In fact, I was a long time (I may say a very long time) making up my mind which of the two I really professed; but, on Arabella's remarking sarcastically one evening that "some people never did know their own minds," and that "men were all alike—fickle as the weather"—I gasped for firmness, uprooted Juliet from my heart forever, and made Arabella name the day on the spot.

However, notwithstanding the uprooting process (which is not always so thorough as some people imagine), if there was one person in the world before whom I wished to present a respectable figure, it was Juliet Thornton. Arabella might get killed in a railroad accident. Strange things happened every day. I glanced about me in desperation. There stood a heavenly ash barrel—right at my elbow. I breathed an inward thanksgiving, and, hastily crumpling the hoop-skirt into the barrel, joined my visitors at the front gate.

"We are just in time to make a tour of your flower garden, Mr. Blodgett," said Juliet gaily: "I do so do go on flowers!" and she gave one, tender glance, as if to say, "I have not forgotten the hot houses and snowy camellias that a certain individual used to send me!"

"I acknowledge myself surprised, Arabella. Men sometimes don't know half as much as they think they do."

Arabella smiled demurely.

TOBACCO PRODUCTION IN THE UNITED STATES.

The report of J. R. Dodge, special agent for the collection of statistics of agriculture, showing the tobacco product of the United States for the census year, 1880, and 1870, has been issued from the Census Office in Washington. The comparative statement presented in the report shows an increase in production of 80 per cent during the decade, the production in 1880 being placed at 1,370,157,335,341. This apparent increase, Mr. Dodge says, exaggerates the real advance in tobacco cultivation, as the preceding census was a small one, and the fair of taxation has been increased to prevent a full census of the tobacco in 1870. The crop in 1870 was one of good production, and in excess of present requirements of home consumption and exportation. Fifteen States produce now, as in 1870,

NEWS IN BRIEF.

FOREIGN.

A fire in the docks at Hull, England, caused a loss of $10,000, including damage to the steamer Orbina.

At Drammen, Norway, striking workmen, who made a raid on the train-hall, were given a refund of two of their number who had been arrested, were fired upon by the military, and one man was killed and several wounded; an officer and some soldiers were injured.

By an explosion in a colliery in Prussia, seventeen persons were killed and five injured.

The trial of the parties charged with the murder of Abdul Aziz has commenced. Hour Pasha, one of the alleged conspirators, stated that he ordered Abdul Aziz to be murdered, but that in doing so he acted at the command of a commission consisting of Midhat, Ruchdi, and Mahmud Pashas. Midhat Pashas denied the truth of Hour's statement point blank.

M. Dutarte, one of the most prominent public men of France, who held office under the king, the Presidency of Louis Napoleon, and under Thiers and MacMahon, died recently, in his 83d year.

The operative tailors of Staffordshire, England, to the number of 30,000, have struck for an advance of 30 per cent. in wages. They struck about a year ago, but had to go back at old rates. It is probable that they will make a more determined fight this time.

Baron Magnus, the German Minister at Copenhagen, who was summarily dismissed by his Government some months ago because of his doing honor to Sar Bernhard, the French actress, is now a lunatic.

A London newspaper says that Mr. Edward Brown, one of President Garfield's private secretaries, who arrived in England about the middle of the month, was the bearer of confidential instructions to Minister Lowell that he request the American Consul in Ireland to report fully concerning the character and extent of Irish disaffection, and particularly on the conduct of Irish-Americans residing in Ireland. The same paper says that Mr. Brown has started for home with a large quantity of valuable information on the subjects of inquiry.

Spain is discussing the question of free trade versus protection. The protectionists, at a meeting held in Barcelona, pointed to the flourishing condition of the United States as a powerful argument in their favor.

Midhat, Mahinou, and Nouri Pashas, Ali Bey, Nadir Bey, Faiz Bey, Hadi Melhem, Mustapha the wrestler, and Mustapha the gardener, convicted of the murder of the ex-Sultan Abdul Aziz, have been sentenced to death. Izet and Zeyda Pasha, implicated in the murder, have been sentenced to ten years' penal servitude.

A great land slide is in progress in the Canton of Berne, Switzerland. A large stretch of land on which are houses, meadows and gardens, is gradually slipping toward the Lake of Thun. Some sheepards, and about 1,300 sheep have been overwhelmed by an avalanche near Engels, in the Canton of Grisons.

Herr Johann Most, publisher of the London Red Flag paper, the Freiheit and recently convicted of inciting to murder, was sentenced to sixteen months' imprisonment. Herr Most exclaimed, when leaving the dock: "We might as well be in Russia."

A process-server, named McAnufie, was shot dead at his residence near Castle Island, County Kerry, the other evening. McAnufie recently gave evidence against the President of the local branch of the Land League, who is now in jail under the Coercion act.

Farnell, T. P. O'Connor and Justin McCarthy have issued an address to the Irish electors in England and Scotland, urging them to unite and organize as to be able to render assistance to Ireland at Parliamentary elections.

In the race for the Stewards' Cup at Henley, the Thames Club crew, the London Club crew and the Cornell University crew rowed. The Thames Club crew won, and the Cornell crew finished third.

There is open and bloody war between the resident populars of the Bohemian city of Prague and the German students congegated there. Several persons have been severely wounded.

PERSONAL.

The Hon. Henry Stanbury, ex-Attorney General, under President Johnson (appointed 1863), died in New York last week.

Mrs. Abraham Lincoln summoned Senator Davis Davis to Springfield for consultation as to the disposition of her property.

GENERAL.

On account of the desperate strife among the wharf laborers at Montreal, the shipping companies engaged 500 men in Liverpool and Glasgow.

Sixteen Jesuit priests, the advance-guard of a large body driven out of Nicaragua, have made their appearance at Panama.

The performances of Baron Hartwig Seesen, the renowned magician, at McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, are attracting large audiences. Seesen is one of the best practitioners of the black art, and does everything with grace. Some of his tricks are executed in the immediate presence of the audience, persons looking intently upon his acts, witness the process, but unable to detect the means. The liberal distribution of handsome and valuable gifts is a feature of the entertainment that compensates many for their attendance.

The dead of the recent Mexican railway accident, number over 250, of whom 197 are Mexican soldiers and seventeen Mexican officers. About forty women and children were more or less injured by fire or by falling over the precipice. Only sixty persons were saved.

Hirard was unsuccessful over Columbia in the late college boat-race.

An organization named the New York Medical Mission has been inaugurated in the metropolis. The purpose of it is to give gratis medical aid to the worthy poor, and at the same time to give instruction in the Gospel and Christian doctrine to the sufferers, thus combining cure of body and soul.

There is reason to believe that the body of A. Stewart, the great New York merchant, which was stolen from its tomb about a year ago, has been recovered, and that the widow is not having built a very strong sepulcher for its final reception that will be proof against any future disturbance.

At the thirty-first annual convention of the American Protestant Association, held at Wilmington, Del., most of the States were represented, although only sixty delegates were present. Samuel Liggett, of Philadelphia, was elected Grand Master for the next year, and John Pike, of Chicago, Vice Grand Master.

A desperate fight between a party of eighteen from the town of Rico, in Southwestern Colorado, and a party of Indians numbering over forty continued for several days. Eight of the party from Rico were killed. A party of twenty started from Rico to aid the residents of the first party.

All the gambling houses of St. Lucie have been closed, an act of the Legislature declaring the keeping of such houses a felony having gone into effect.

The number of postoffices in the United States is 44,956; of which 2,694 were established during the year just closed. During the same period 1,403 offices were discontinued. Some 10,441 Postmasters were made happy by receiving commissions during the year.

The Yorktown Centennial Commission formally adopted a model for the monument proposed to commemorate the victory and its centennial celebration. The monument, according to the plans, will cost about $100,000. George Lincoln has directed that the work be commenced immediately.

The present office in the Treasury Department is too great and the other seekers are so numerous that it is believed that Secretary Windham will adopt a system of competitive examination in the case of all vacancies that may occur in his department.

POLITICS.

In the ballot at Albany on the 25th of June, Potter and Wheeler each received 82 votes, and Conkling 22. Depew and Kean had each 31 votes for the long term, and Platt 20. Mr. Conkling visited Washington on that day.

Ex-Senator Spencer denies the report that he is to assist Postmaster General Tyler's position, and Tyner says he has no intention of letting go.

There are eight Republican candidates for Speaker of the next House of Representatives—viz., Keifer, of Ohio; Casson, of Iowa; Hubbell and Burrows, of Michigan; Hiscox, of New York; Robinson, of New Jersey; Reed, of Maine; and Orth, of Indiana. Russell, Cox and Blackburn are the Democratic candidates.

Ladd will probably get the house of a nomination from the Greenbackers; while Kelley, of Pennsylvania, is spoken of as an independent candidate.

Speaker Sessions was one of those indicted for bribery by the Albany County Grand Jury. He is held in bail in the sum of $2,000. The trial on the 25th ult. gave the following result: Conkling, 31; Wheeler, 42; Depew, 50; Platt, 27. It is stated that the friends of Conkling proposed to the friends of Depew, that if the latter will vote for Conkling for the short term, the former will vote for Depew for the long term. The proposition was rejected.

The Virginia State Republican Committee met on the 25th ult., pursuant to the call of Chairman Lewis. All the members were present in person or by proxy. Mr. Lewis, who presided at the opening of the meeting, stated that he purposed resigning, and took exception to the course pursued by the members of the committee who "met" on the 21st ult. and elected Gen. Wickham Chairman. A resolution requesting both Wickham and Lewis to resign, and providing for a committee of two to recommend a new Chairman, was adopted. J. W. Cochran, a colored straight-out Republican, was elected Chairman by a vote of 14 to 13, and by a similar vote it was decided to hold a straight-out Republican convention at Lynchburg the 10th of August, to which delegates should be elected on the 3d of August.

Balloting at Albany on the 27th of June resulted: Wheeler, 32; Potter, 21; and Conkling, 24. For the long term: Depew, 35; Kean, 22; and Platt, 21. Mr. Conkling, on his recent visit to Washington, gave up the rooms he held so long.

The Iowa Republicans met in convention at Des Moines, June 25. There were 1,019 delegates in attendance. Hon. Robert K. Sherman was nominated for Governor in the twelfth ballot, and by acclamation after the eleventh ballot had shown that he had received within his vote the number necessary to succeed.

SALLING, HANSON & CO., EDs.

Entered at the Post Office at Grayling,
Michigan, as second-class matter.

THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1881.

Correspondence.

FREDERICKSVILLE, July 5, 1881.
Editor Avalanche:—The 4th passed off quietly with us. A few went to Otsego and a few to Grayling, but nearly all of our citizens said at home and endeavored to keep cool. All unanimously agreed that it was hot, and to day, the 5th, is still hotter. We are in hopes that the diphtheria is at last stayed in this vicinity. There have been five deaths from this dread malady. The saddest case being the family of Adelbert A. Carter, our township clerk. His wife and two little ones died within one week's time. He has the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community. The other two cases were the little girl of Freeman Ensign, and a little boy of Smith, who lives about two miles east of this village.

Dr. R. Morrison, who hails from Pennsylvania, has come to Frederickville with the intention of making it his permanent abode. At the time when the disease was at its height, the township board of health sent to State board of health for assistance, and as a result, Dr. Hauxhurst, of Bay City, came here, but on finding Dr. Morrison here and the disease already checked, he did not deem it necessary to remain, and returned the next day. He approved of the course of Dr. Morrison and recommended the citizens to rely on him for the necessary medical assistance. The Dr. is entitled to the thanks of the citizens of Frederickville and vicinity, and has our best wishes for his future prosperity. Those who are in need of the services of a physician will bear this in mind. He is at present boarding at the hotel.

Did you hear our school-bell ring? It tolled its first toll here last week.
